

ATTENTION, MEMORY AND LEARNING: A REAL JUGGLING ACT!

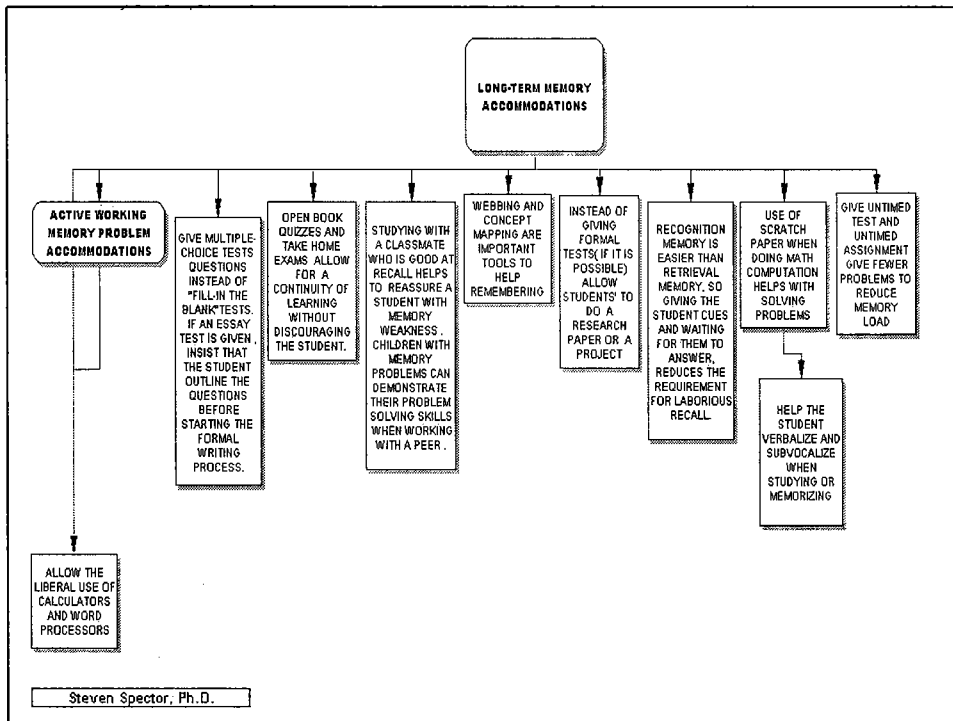

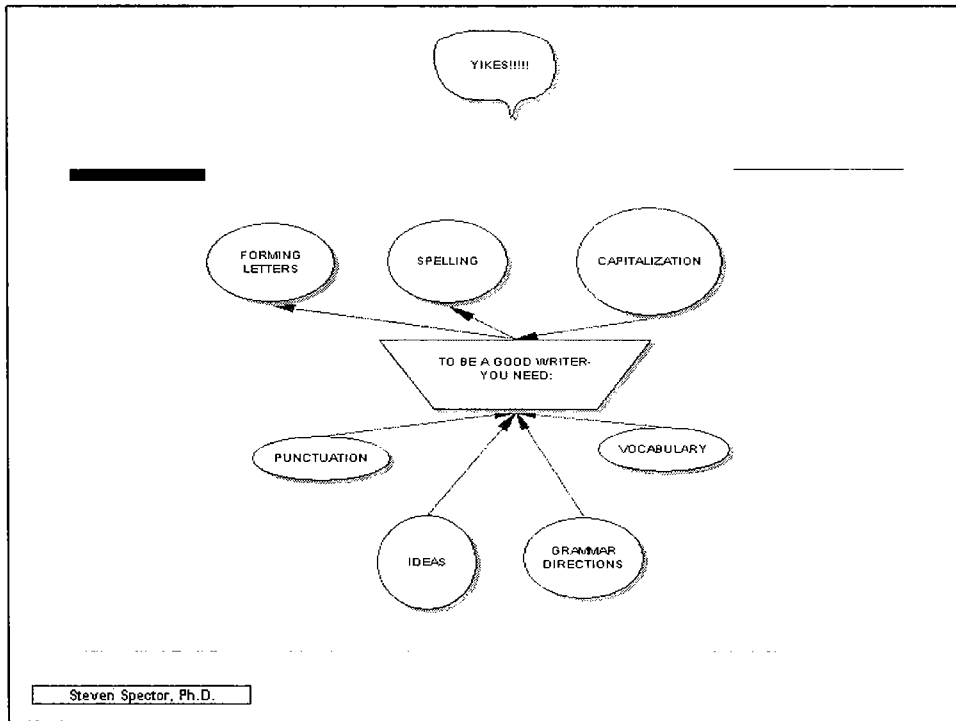

Steven Spector, Ph.D.
 5600 West Maple Rd. Suite C-307
 West Bloomfield, MI. 48322
 248.539.8018
 steven-spector@sbcglobal.net
 October 1, 2004

ADAPTING TECHNIQUES

- | <input type="checkbox"/> STRATEGY | Descriptors | EXAMPLE: |
|---|---|-----------------|
| <input type="checkbox"/> RATE ADJUSTMENT: | More time to process, to complete assignments. Untimed or extended time on tests and more time given for assignments. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> VOLUME ADJUSTMENT: | Smaller amount of material to process or interpret. Writing a shorter report, solving fewer math problems. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> COMPLEXITY REDUCTION: | Fewer details or complicated ideas to create or interpret. Reading an easier text or book. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> PRIORITIZATION: | Certain task parts are stressed or de-emphasized during an assignment. Having student first get his thoughts on paper and disregard spelling. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> SHIFTING OF PRODUCTION: | Presents information in a way that he can process better. Presenting an oral report vs. written report. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> MODIFICATION OF GRADING SYSTEM: | Performance is assessed differently. Using a modified grading system and providing daily or weekly feedback. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> USE OF SUPPORTS OR AIDS: | Assistive technology. Using a calculator in math, using a word processor or a laptop computer. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> STAGING: | Concentrate on only one task in the writing process before going to the next, i.e., vocabulary then spelling, etc. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | Strategies borrowed from | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | Mel Levine, M.D., | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | Educational Care , 1994 | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | Steven Spector, Ph.D. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | 5600 West Maple Rd. C-307 | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | West Bloomfield, Mich. | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | 248.539.8018 | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | steven-spector@sbcglobal.net | |

Steven Spector, Ph.D.